

Dry Mouth Products: What to Buy

We do not sell any of these and have no relationship with any brand here. Buy them wherever you like.

Two different jobs, and only one changes what happens to your teeth. Comfort products make a dry mouth feel wetter. Protective products defend the teeth while saliva is low. Most people buy from the comfort shelf, feel better, and get cavities anyway. Do both. These are all adjuncts for keeping the microbiome healthy in a dry mouth, not replacements for saliva.

Buy this first: xylitol gum or mints

- Five times a day, after meals. Cheapest item here and the best evidence behind it.
- Chewing raises flow on demand; xylitol cannot be turned into acid by decay bacteria.
- Brands: Spry, Epic, PUR, Zellies. Grocery, pharmacy or online.

Remineralize every night

- Last thing before bed. Spit, do not rinse, and nothing to eat or drink after.
- High-fluoride: a 5000 ppm prescription paste. Ask us.
- Nano-hydroxyapatite, if you would rather skip fluoride. A real option, not a consolation prize.

Overnight: XyliMelts

- A disc that sticks to the gum and releases xylitol for hours. The only product built to last the night, which is when saliva bottoms out.
- Our patients like these more than anything else we suggest.

pH support: CariFree

- Aimed at the chemistry rather than the feeling. With low saliva, plaque stays acidic long after eating.
- Worth it if decay is already happening rather than just threatening.

If you have a dairy allergy, read toothpaste labels. MI Paste and similar CPP-ACP products are made from milk casein, and for anyone with a milk allergy that is a serious problem. The manufacturer says they should not be used by patients with a milk protein allergy. Note this means a true milk allergy, not lactose intolerance: the lactose content is under 0.01%, so lactose intolerance is not a reason to avoid it. We use nano-hydroxyapatite instead, which does a similar job with no milk protein and no tray required.

Comfort: Biotene and similar

- Fine for comfort, and that is a real thing to want at 3 a.m. Rinse, spray or gel.
- It is a moisturizer, not a decay preventive. Do not let it be the only thing you do.

Rinses, if you want one

- Nothing with alcohol. It dries the tissue you are trying to soothe.
- CloSYS is where we start people. StellaLife after surgery. Swish and NOBS for hydroxyapatite and xylitol.

- A rinse alone will not stop cavities. Plaque is sticky; brushing and flossing do that work.

Costs nothing

- A humidifier in the bedroom. In this climate it does more than most of the shelf.
- Plain water through the day. Constant sipping of anything sweet or acidic is worse than the dryness it treats.

If it is severe

- Prescription medications stimulate the glands themselves. That is a conversation with your physician, and worth having if nothing here has helped.
- Also ask whether any medication can be moved to the morning, reduced or swapped. Never stop one on your own.
